Legation Official Says Far Eastern Route to Emphasize Importance

New York, Jan. 18 (CP).—Canada's northern lands will be among the vital areas of the world for air travel, L. B. Pearson, minister counsellor of the Canadian Legation in Washington, said today at a special "Canada Day" program in town hall here.

Professor Francis Scott of McGill University, Montreal, agreed with Pearson. He said: "We are only now beginning to realize how valuable our northern regions may become as a strategic flying centre providing the shortest direct air route to the Far East."

Pearson said "no two nations are so closely united" as Canada and the United States.

"We can be assured that our relations under the compelling emergency of war are closer and friendlier than ever," he said. "Defense from attack against the forces of evil aggression have, in a sense, made us almost one continental community. War supplies go back and forward across our boundary without benefit of customs."

The habits of economic and political co-operation developed in the forcing time of war, will not be discarded when war ends.

"It would be a great honor for Canada if the lines of friendly cooperation between Washington and London could run through Ottawa. That would be an axis of life and liberty—instead of the Rome-Berlin-Tokio axis of death and slavery."

To us—Americans and Canadians—is given the chance to prove to the whole world that good neighborhood is a living reality and not merely a political catch-phrase."

Professor Scott, referring to Canada as the shortest direct route to the Far East, said that "the age of the steamship leaves Canada somewhat out in the cold; but the age of the airplane makes her an important centre of geopolitics."

Despite geographical difficulties and small population, Canada is one of the six top ranking suppliers of world trade. Fully 35 per cent of our national income in normal times comes from foreign trade.

"We are producing 400 airplanes a month and make three machine-guns every two minutes. One million tons of shipping will be launched this year."

"Canada has 600,000 men in service and although not compelled to serve overseas, over two-thirds of them have volunteered for service somewhere in the world."

Of these 180,000 serve in Britain, he said.

F. H. HURLBURT IS DEAD AT 66

Inventor of Cushion Sole Shoe for Children

Barrie, Jan. 18 (Special).—Frank Heman Hurlbut, 66, proprietor of the Hurlbut Shoe Co., Barrie, and inventor of the Frank Hurlbut cushion sole shoe for children, died in Royal Victoria Hospital from diabetes and complications. He had been in failing health for five years.

A member of a prominent United Empire Loyalist family, he was born at Prescott on July 15, 1876, a son of Thomas Reynolds Hurlbut and Matilda Louise Godden. He entered the business world as a boy at Thornbury, and became the owner of a general store there. This business was purchased by Carr's Shoe Company, which brought him to Barrie in September, 1911, to manage the company's store here. In 1917 he purchased the business himself and established the Hurlbut Shoe Co. Later he invented the Hurlbut cushion sole.

Mr. Hurlbut was a charter member of Barrie Kiwanis Club, a past President of Barrie Board of Trade, and an active member for many years of Collier Street United Church. He was a member of the choir and Sunday school staff for many years.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Miss Mary Jane Walker, Thornbury, whom he married in February, 1896, and three daughters, Mrs. Charles E. Carlin, Toronto; Mrs. R. H. Judge, Bradford; and Miss Frances Hurlbut, at home. One sister, Mrs. Frank Hartman, Thornbury, also survives.

The funeral service takes place in Collier Street United Church, Barrie, at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, followed by interment in Thornbury Cemetery.

All Sense of Smell Gone . NOSE FILLED UP McCoalda's Taste Food

"I couldn't taste food. I was so clogged up in my head and throat, there was practically no sense of taste left. My nose became and was almost dead. My dentist suggested that I use Colgate's mouthwash and here is what happened."

"The answer to my head and throat was evidently suspended."

GIFT OF RETIRING EXECUTIVES of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., two ambulances were presented to the Canadian Red Cross last night by R. Y. Eaton, recent president, and J. J. Vaughan, recent vice-president. The presentations took place at a testimonial assemblage to the two former executives in the King Edward Hotel. The ambulances were a gift to them by company officials from coast to coast, and they in turn presented them to the Red Cross. Picture shows Mr. Justice P. H. Gordon, chairman of the executive committee of the Red Cross (centre), receiving plaques for the sides of the mercy vehicles from Mr. Vaughan (left) and Mr. Eaton (right).

GROUP HEALTH PLAN UPHELD

Anti - Trust Conviction Confirmed by U.S. Court

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Supreme Court of the United States today upheld the conviction of the American Medical Association and the District of Columbia Medical Society on charges that they sought to hamstring a co-operative group health plan and thereby violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The medical associations were fined $2,500 and $1,500, respectively, on charges that they conspired to "restrain trade" by influencing physicians and hospitals to boycott Group Health Association, Inc., a co-operative organization of 3,200 Government employees in the District of Columbia. Group Health was set up to provide medical and hospital care for its members on a prepayment plan. The decision noted that such a plan "was contrary to the code of ethics" of the A.M.A.

Miss Edith Rockwood, Labor Department employee who is president of Group Health, commented that "the decision will be advantageous to all groups in the United States that are planning for medical care."

The court's vote was 6 to 0. Justices Frank Murphy and Robert Jackson, former attorneys-general, did not participate.

The opinion, written by Justice Owen Roberts, was devoted chiefly to legal technicalities. It found that the court did not need to consider or decide the question of principal interest to laymen raised by the appeal—whether a physician's practice of his profession constitutes "trade" within the meaning of the Sherman Act which prohibits combinations in restraint of trade.

"Group health is a membership corporation engaged in business or trade," Roberts explained. "Its corporate activity is the consummation of the co-operative effort of its members to obtain for themselves and their families medical service and hospitalization on a risk-sharing prepayment basis. The corporation collects funds from its members. With these funds physicians are employed and hospitalization prepared..."

"It is as we hold, the indictment charges a single conspiracy to restrain and obstruct this business it charges a conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce within the status... The calling or occupation of the individual physicians charged as defendants is immaterial if the purpose and effect of their conspiracy was such obstruction and restraint of the business of group health."

Eighteen individual defendants have been acquitted by the jury in the lower court.

COUNCIL BACKS RUM TAX PLAN

Urge Dominion Adopt Collection by Pay-as-Go

Guelph, Jan. 18 (Special).—Guelph City Council tonight decided unanimously to urge the Federal Government to adopt the Rum "Pay-as-you-go plan" for the collection of income taxes.

"The pay-as-you-go plan would permit the collection of current income taxes at the source and at the time such income was earned instead of being eight months in arrears as at present," stated Alderman F. L. Freudeman in presenting the resolution.

"Thousands of wage and salary earners who will receive reduced earnings during the postwar period will be unable to pay the high taxes accumulated on their previous incomes," he added.

"The answer to my head and throat was evidently suspended."

Gift of Two Ambulances Honors Eaton, Vaughan

Marking their retirement as president and vice-president of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., R. Y. Eaton and J. J. Vaughan were guests of honor at a testimonial gathering last night in the King Edward Hotel. More than 500 executives of the company from coast to coast expressed their respects to their two recent chiefs by presenting them with two fully-equipped Red Cross ambulances, which they in turn presented to the Canadian Red Cross.

The many other tributes paid to Mr. Eaton and Mr. Vaughan were indicative of the high respect and esteem in which they were held by all ranks of employees, and expressed the sincere regret felt at their decision to retire. W. H. Anderson, chairman of the presentation committee, introduced Alfred London, employee for 33 years, who on behalf of the executives of the company, presented one of the vehicles to Mr. Eaton with an illuminated address which paid high tribute to him for his splendid example of business and personal integrity during his 45 years with the company.

Plaque on Ambulance.

The address also extended warmest good wishes to Mrs. Eaton and expressed the hope they would live a long and happy life together. It mentioned that on one of the ambulances would be a plaque with "your name inscribed upon it as the donor to strike a chord of kind memory and association in the hearts of many of our own people who are now working for us elsewhere."

In his address of reply Mr. Eaton said, in part: "I feel deeply moved by your presence here, especially the presence of many who have come a great distance at much inconvenience to attend this function. I was also moved by the very generous tributes paid to me in the address which was read. They are altogether too generous, I think, because, in carrying out my duties as president, much of the merit was really due to the great assistance I received in the way of active co-operation and loyalty from the managers and assistants, and other executives; also the fine support which I have had at all times from the several directors of the company. I appreciate very much the good wishes which have been given to me, and to Mrs. Eaton."

Will Enjoy Rest.

He has received many congratulations on what is termed my well-earned rest, and I certainly appreciate them," continued Mr. Eaton. "I am sure I am going to enjoy it because when at work there were many times when I wanted to do something in the way of recreation and travel—but did not feel free to do so, as it would have taken too much time, but I think that in the future I will be able to do something in that way."

Referring to my 45 years of association with the T. I might mention Mr. McGee and the man he has left behind him and the departments he built up from scratch.

The Prisoners of War Section of the Department of the Red Cross Toronto Branch is a growing concern. Since the section was opened last September the small staff has been increased considerably.

Hamming with activity, the centre is open from ten to five daily and on Saturday from ten to twelve and is staffed entirely by volunteers, several of whom are next-of-kin themselves.

The Bureau has all available information regarding what items can be sent in parcels, cables and correspondence supplied by the International Red Cross in Geneva, which tracks men missing. The workers handle all cables going to prisoners of war. Relatives of missing soldiers may obtain the latest regulations and receive assistance in planning boxes.

Where there are no next-of-kin the department has a scheme whereby individuals may adopt a prisoner for the duration and be responsible for his welfare by ensuring him next-of-kin privileges.

The Bureau is visited by relatives seeking help in locating sons and husbands listed missing and it makes far-reaching inquiries which go through Ottawa to the International Red Cross in Geneva. In the case of a missing airmen the Red Cross waits five weeks before sending out inquiries, in order to give him a chance to escape in the event he has bailed out over enemy territory.

Soldier's Wife Jo Other Wives

We wrote recently of how news of men who have been reported casualties is appreciated by their families and we have heard this stressed so often by wives and mothers that we want to make this appeal to any one who has news of someone else though a chum who was with him when the end came, may feel it is also painful to relate to them. But they would rather know. Often, the true story may be less hard to bear than those their own imaginations may keep conjuring up and torturing them with.

is all-powerful, those who control it are impatient of correction or restraint, of criticism or investigation. When the State becomes master, the people degenerate into servants. This has proved to be the case wherever state socialism has been tried. We pay just tribute to Russia and the valiant part she is playing in the war. But it was of the Bolshevik revolution with its denial of freedom, which made Russia strong; it was the industrial evolution, which came to that country half a century later than did the democracies. But neither communism nor industrialism, nor both together, have succeeded in living the Russian people as high a standard of living, on the average, as the lowest paid section of the people of Britain.

"Expanding production is the basis of prosperity. The economic organization of yesterday was unable to achieve it or to sustain it. State socialism can never achieve it, for socialism is rigid, centralized and coercive. The only hope of a steadily expanding national income lies in the co-operation of the state with all organized enterprise, whether it be private or co-operative or government owned. The government must join with those engaged in industry, commerce, agriculture and finance to plan for full, steady and growing production and complete employment, with as little loss of individual freedom as possible.

"In the past, political parties have appealed for the confidence of the people on mere details of policy. They have promised a subsidy here, and adjustment of tariff there, an extension of some form of patronage in this district and the other, or a measure of social service or of public works. By and large, they have all too often failed to give any broad political leadership or point the way to a juster, richer and more satisfying social order.

RATIONAL REFORM

"And now on the one hand we have piecemeal policies leaning toward reaction. On the other we are offered socialism. What the Progressive Conservative party stands for is a position between these two extremes. We stand for a comprehensive system of rational reform. Between these three Canada must choose. It commences to look as though a decision will not be long delayed.

"Too many of us have been thinking and voting, not as Canadians, but as members of some group—industrialists, farmers or other workers; Westerners, Easterners, Maritimers or British Columbians; as French-speaking, English-speaking or other-language Canadians. This is all wrong. Nothing which is bad for the hive is good for the bee, a house which is divided against itself will fall. A sane and clear approach to the basic task of mobilizing our resources, both human and material, will go far toward removing these sectional misunderstandings, and local hardships."

The government, he continued, by the conscious and deliberate exercise of its functions, can influence to a vital degree the conditions of life in which our people spend their days. The important thing is that it should direct that influence toward the creation of a stable and prosperous community and secure the co-operation of all other organized elements in society to achieving the same end.

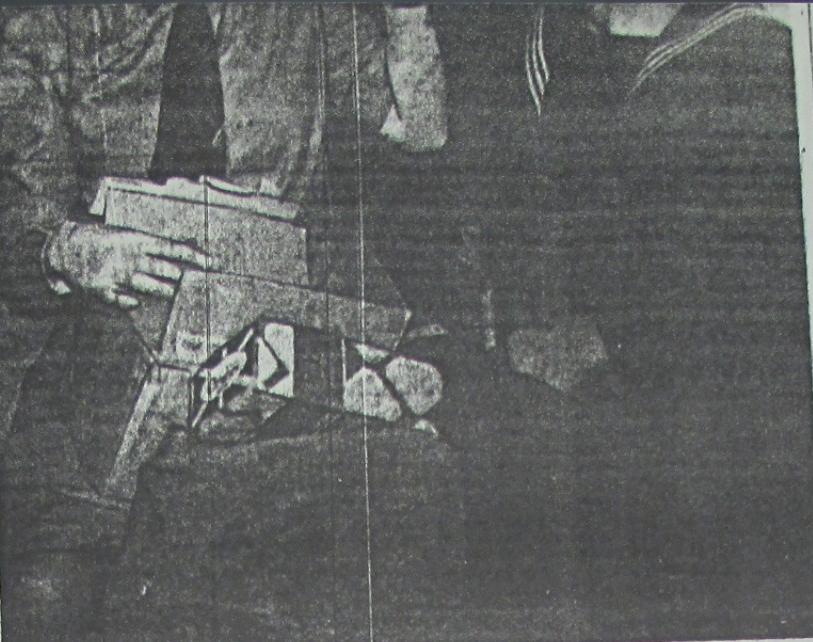

"If the great spending power of the government is used, not only to build public works and provide social services, but as a means of supplementing enterprise when investment begins to dwindle, and taking up the resulting slack in employment wherever unemployment shows its head—then we shall have moved closer to a stable and orderly economy. In the future the government must become the balance wheel of the nation."

Now that in present conditions farmers and labor, bankers and industrialists, merchants, lumbermen and corporate trustees are banded together in associations to further the welfare of the community in general, the

Voice For Labor In Management

"Labor, for instance, should be more fully organized for its own protection, and the governing body of labor given not only rights and powers, but responsibilities. And workers should have some voice in management through joint labor-management production committees. This is only just, for labor cannot exist without access to capital equipment; and it is not reasonable that such capital equipment should be utilized that the opportunities for productive employment are curtailed rather than expanded. But if these rights are freely accorded to labor, then labor must also accept the responsibilities that go with them. If management is to be held chiefly responsible for maximum employment, then labor must share the responsibility for maximum production, and the government must accept the responsibility for co-ordinating the efforts of both."

"Those who, whether in the ranks of capital or labor, curtail the production of goods in order to hold

One of the busiest departments in the Royal Canadian Navy these days is the Fleet Mail Office at an Eastern Canadian Port, for there all mail and bundles for men and women of the senior service serving in the area, afloat and overseas, is received and despatched.

The influx of Christmas mail has so peped up the activities of this branch that postal clerks have merely point out that State Socialism cannot brook political opposition, and that, once in power, it always moves swiftly toward dictatorship supported by force.

AMATEUR SHEPHERDS*

"As a Canadian team, we can win material prosperity and we can save our self-respect," Mr. Bracken asserted. "It is surer and quicker than being driven like a flock of sheep by a group of amateur shepherds in distant Ottawa, their dogs forever snapping at our heels to keep us in line."

"There is no advantage in just changing masters. It is tyranny that we must destroy. It matters little whether the tyranny which has duped the people into giving it authority and proceeds thereafter to entrench itself. How much would the people of Berlin give to-day if only they could recall the mandate they gave to the National Socialist Party in 1933?"

The Progressive Conservative party believed that the government should bridle the strong and see that their strength is turned to useful account; should lift up the weak and give them the means to help themselves; and that it should do those things for the people at large which can better be done by the State than by any single element within it. We believe that government must be decentralized and brought more directly under the scrutiny of the people who are governed, and that all organized elements in the community should be given an opportunity to participate in the determination of policy, as they see fit.

"For my part, I believe that the system of piecemeal politics is quite incapable of creating a harmonious and prosperous condition of life in the difficult days after the war, and I am convinced that the other alternative—Socialism—can do no better; that it is distasteful to the temperament of our people, and, in any case, would not result in the creation of abundance and variety. At best, it could only assure the rationing of scarcity. What Canada needs is neither piecemeal politics nor State Socialism. What she really needs is rational reforms which will assure full production, full employ- ment and the maximum of security, without the loss of freedom. This combination of things we have never known before, and could not expect under a socialist regime."

Admitting that the economic sys- tem may have its faults, the Pro- gressive Conservative leader declared that it comes near enough to ful- filling its purpose that it would be folly to let it be torn to pieces. "It is up to us to perfect it and this can be accomplished by executive engagement placed on a 24-hour shift. More staff has been added and the Wrens have come to the fore, re- lieving men for duty on the "graveyard" shifts.

Never in wartime history has the mail at this base been so heavy, and personnel of Canada's fast-growing navy are due for the merriest Christmas ever, if the abundance of mail and bundles received can be taken as a criterion.

So great has been the normal in- flux of letters and parcels in the last several months that regular facilities for handling navy mail have been inadequate. Extra mail accommodation has had to be secured to assure prompt delivery and now the Christmas rush has further handicapped the "F.M.O." On an ordinary day some 2,200 letters and 350 bags of parcel mail keeps the staff more than busy.'

TIMOTHY EATON DAUGHTER DIES AT HOME HERE

Mrs. Josephine S. Burnside Became Director of Firm in 1891 — She Was a Lusitania Survivor

A survivor of the Lusitania sink- ing, Mrs. Josephine S. Burnside, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Eaton and widow of T. D. M. Burnside of London, Eng- land, died yesterday at her resi- dence, 126 Dunvegan Rd., Kitchener, Ont., at 8:30 a.m.

She had been a director of the T. Eaton Co. since it became an incorporated company in 1891.

Mrs. Burnside was an enthusiastic patron of the arts, as her important collection of antique furniture and other artistic objects, given to and now exhibited at the Royal Ontario Museum, will testify.

Born at St. Mary's, Ont., she came to Toronto in 1860 with her parents and made her home here for many years. She had travelled extensively throughout the world and had returned to England for 29 years, re- turning to Canada permanently in 1919.

Mrs. Burnside was one of the passengers aboard the ill-fated Lusi- tania when it was torpedoed during the first Great War. She was rescued after eight hours of exposure, but her daughter, Iris, and her com- panion, Miss Matthe Waites, were among the many lost.

She was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bloor east. Her only sister, Mrs. Charles E. Burden, survives.

NO. 1 U.S. NAVY ACE 'BUTCH' IS MISSING

London, Dec. 11—Lieut.-Comdr. Edward H. "Butch" O'Hare, Congressional medal of honor holder and U.S. naval ace who downed five Jap planes in a single engagement, was reported today to have been shot down November 27 in a night battle in the central Pacific. A dispatch datelined "Aboard a U.S. Carrier in the Central Pacific" reported the ace failed to return from the engagement, but gave no further details.

The St. Louis airman was awarded the Congressional medal for blasting five Nipponese planes during the battle of the Coral sea in February, 1942. He damaged a sixth Jap bomber.

O'Hare also was credited with shooting down another Jap plane in a fight over Wake Island in October, 1942, and aiding three fellow airmen in downing six others, also over Wake.

580,000 REFUGEES TAKEN IN BY U.S., AND DOOR YET OPEN

At the Dec. 11 meeting of the Markham Men's Institute, Mrs. J. White, president of the war work committee, Campbell, reported that 580,000 refugees from Europe had been given haven by the U.S. since Hitler mounted his campaign of intolerance, and U.S. gates are still open to any who escape the Nazis, it was revealed yesterday. Britain and the U.S. are sharing the cost of caring for refugees from Europe.

The assistant secretary of state, Breckenridge Long, told the House of Representatives' foreign affairs committee that "we are ready to take all new refugees who come out of France or other occupied territory. Spain will assist them."

He disclosed that all the neutral countries of Europe have cooperated in forging for refugees a "way out" of the inferno Hitler has made of their homelands. About 30,000 have come through Spain, Long said, and all but 1,200 have been moved along to other places where better food and shelter are available.

Just after the Nazi flood into all of France, touched off by the invasion of North Africa, Spain sent troops to her northern border to prevent the new exodus of refugees, it was disclosed. The U.S. immediately took the matter up in Madrid and it three days Spain reopened

THE KING IMPROVING LOOKS IN ON DANCE

London, Dec. 11—(CP)—The King is still confined to his room as a result of influenza although he is making progress in his recovery and held a privy council meeting yesterday, it was announced today.

Last night, however, His Majesty looked in on a dance given by Princess Elizabeth at a house in the country for about 150 guests, most of whom are in the services. He and the Queen remained only a short time.

A London dance band played and Princess Elizabeth and her sister, Princess Margaret, danced most of the numbers.

Meanwhile, a considerable rise in deaths attributable to influenza was reported by Reuter's. During the week ending Dec. 4, there were 790 deaths, compared with 375 the previous week, in 126 main towns, including London.

During the last war, she was returning to England from a visit to Toronto with her daughter Iris on the Cunard liner Lusitania. The ship was torpedoed and sunk. Mrs. Burnside was rescued after a terrible eight hours of exposure. Her daughter was lost, together with her companion, Miss Mattie Waites.

Mrs. Burnside is survived by her sister, Mrs. Charles E. Burden, who is now the only remaining child of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Eaton.

She was a member of St. Paul's Anglican church, Bloor St. E.
